WASHINGTON, April 14.—An air of sadness pervaded the house when the speaker's gavel called the body to order.

Draped in black and ornamented with a handsome floral design, the seat so long occupied by Mr. Randall recalled to memory the fact that their old colleague had passed away forever. The crayon portrait of the ex-speaker hung in the lobby tastefully draped with the emblems of mourning.

A MEASURE TO INCREASE THE CIRCULATION.

Mr. Plumb Asks That Those Dormant Millions be Put

Washington, April 14.—Mr. Plumb in-troduced a bill forthe disposition of certain funds in the treasury and asked that it be read in full as he desired to call the attenion of the finance committee to it. It pro-ides that the money required to be deposvides that the money required to be deposited for the redemption of the national bank circulation shall be carried into the treasury and treated as funds available for the reduction of the public debt and for the current expenses of the government; that current expenses of the government; that all funds held for the payment of the ma-tured debt and interest due and unpaid shall be similarly treated and that here-after no funds available above the sum of after no funds available above the sum of $10,000,000 shall be retained in the treasury—this not to be construed, however, as pernamently diminishing the fund of $100,000,000 now held for the redemption of treasury notes. He said that there was less than $700,000,000 people of the United States, properly not more than $10 per capita. The system that had been built and maintained had brought about that result. It had its great defects. One of the greatest of these defects was the compulsory holding in the treasury of that very large sum of money on the theory confuted by every known 1963, and on the further theory that the secretary of the treasury was to be the arbitrator of the financial questions of the people. It had been stated in the of the people. It had been stated in the public prints that in pursuance of his policy of controlling the finances of the country, the secretary of the treasury had contracted the currency during the month contracted the currency auring the mona-of February over $10,000.000. He (Mr. Plumb believed that that retention of money in the treasury and the assumption on the part of the secretary to do what might have been once proper but which now constitutes a menage to the business of the country, ought to be prohibited by

A senator sitting near, him had asked

A senator sitting near, him had asked him for what nominal purpose the $250,000,000 was held in the treasury. He would tell him. A brudred millions was held in assumed obedieva, to the law of 1888 to provide for the renemption of legal tenders—treasury notes. Sixty odd millions was held for the redemption of national bank notes—of banks that had gone out of business or that were retiring a portion of their circulation. Between five and six millions was held for the redemption of such notes of national banks as, tion of such notes of national banks as from time to time, came into the treasury and were found to be unlit for further cir-culation. About seven millions was held r the nurnose of the navment of coupons due and not presented and of debt which matured from time to time, but the evi-dence of which had not been presented and some of which probably never would be presented. As to the remainder of it, it is impossible to tell why it was held. He had given all possible scrutiny to the statement of the treasurer and he could not tell. The confusion of subjects and of amounts was such that it was im-possible for any one to tell about it. It possible for any one to tell about it. It was enough to know that it was not held there for any useful purpose. He did not think the law required any of it to be held there except such portion as in the descre-tion of the secretary was necessary to meet the obligations of the government. He (Mr. Plumb admitted that the secretary might even under that theory hold as large might even under that theory hold as large a sum as was now in the treasury, although he (Mr. Plumb) should think it an extraordinary use of the secretary's discretion. From every quarter there was abundant evidence that the public need for the transaction of its business demanded that this money in the treasury should be distursed. For all useful purposes it might as well be in the bottom of the sea as in the treasury. During last year nearly $40,000,000 of national bank circulation had been withdrawn. To meet that reduction there was of course the coinage of silver—$2,000,000 a month—and the coinage of gold, but experience showed that not ver-$2,000,000 a month—and the coinage of gold; but experience showed that not only were these two agencies needed, but there was also needed paper money to the maximum amount onestanding at any time. The business of the country was languishing. New enterprises were withheld, old enterprises were struggling to keep on their feet. And here was dread and terror and apprehension where there ought to be hopefulness, helpfulness and enterprise. That condition of things would continue until the remedy was attained; and that remedy could only come by legislation; because legislation combined with executive action has brought the country to where it now was. Conthe country to where it now was. Congress would legislate some of these days on the silver question; but no one knew when and no one knew how. Whatever was done would result in a great addition o the money of the country. But this neasure of his (or something like it) would

Washington, April 14.—The United States supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Miller, today affirmed the judgment of the California circuit court in the case of Cunningham, sheriff, plaintiff in error, vs. David Nagle. This case grows out of the shooting of Judge Terry in a railway station at Lathrop, Cal., last August by Nagle in order to protect Justice Field, whom Terry had assaulted. The decision is in favor of Nagle.

After a review of the facts leading up to the assault, including all the facts bearing on the homieide, the opinion says that "they produce upon the court the conviction of a stitled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stitled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of Terry and his wife amounting to a conviction of a stilled purpose on the part of these cases the elections committee sars to which by the man and consequently the action of the house in the matter will be perfunctory. The court's response to this contention is that the express terms of the hases corpuse and the chief justice, delivered an elaborate and vigorous dissent to the opinion of the court.
